

CASA HEALTH & WELLNESS PRESENTS:

JUSTICE, LIBERATION, & INCLUSIVITY:

helping kids “flip the script” on stereotypes of Masculinity

Dear Rooftop
Parents, Caregivers, Educators, & Community:

We warmly invite you to join us
Wednesday 10/26
for a highly relevant experiential community circle!

This group will be a chance to share and hear from other parents & teachers about their experiences navigating collectively-socialized messages around manhood, masculinity, and gender-based stereotyping across the spectrum. The group will include multiple resources from diverse origins, but many of our activities stem from the work of Tony Porter, an international human rights advocate, Chief Executive Director of A Call to Men, and speaker for organizations from the NFL to the United Nations to TED.com - the last of which we will draw on extensively during our gathering. Please be aware that the content Porter discusses in this talk may be emotionally triggering to some people; in particular, he does discuss sexual violence. Please call or email Lily if you would like more specific information on this content before signing up. In order to foster a sense of trust, community, and sufficient time to share and process, registration for this group is limited to 20 participants. Don't wait to sign up!

Workshop Facilitators

Tyler Holmes

likes to teach unapologetic processing and support people in learning about themselves and each other through openness. Tyler teaches 5th grade students at CASA.

Lily Cardasis

comes from a background in community mental health, liberation psychology, and art therapy. Lily feels fortunate to have found her place as Mental Health & Wellness Counselor for the CASA community.

WHEN:

10.26.16

Wednesday
5:30 - 7:30 pm

Childcare Provided!

WHERE

ROOFTOP ELEMENTARY

Burnett Library Bungalow #16

HOW:

RSVP

CardasisCounseling.org/workshops-for-parents

or 415.748.5297